Description

The English/Communications concentration emphasizes the important processes of writing, reading, and communicating to assign meaning and create a shared understanding with others. The ability to communicate effectively in any format is an essential skill for all endeavors. Personal fulfillment and appreciation of our own culture and time period requires understanding the forms and functions of our own cultural artifacts, such as language use, novels, short stories, film, television ads, dramas, journals, narratives, poetry, essays, letters, memo's, web-pages, manuals, science logs, tables, maps, brochures, and other forms of communication.
